

DESIGN WORKING DOCUMENT

CYA Website Experience Wireframes and Mock-ups

A content-led visual definition of the proposed release-one site structure, priority pages, conversion logic and responsive behaviour.

Prepared for Glenn Hammond and Debby Lewis
Stage 2: Experience and Content Definition
31 July 2026

Governing proposition

Start with one useful moment—or build a connected year of movement, mindfulness, learning and digital support around your people.

Status: Working recommendation for Stage 2 approval. This document does not approve unverified claims, client proof, facilitator credentials, pricing, product inclusions or legal wording.

PURPOSE

How to read this document

These wireframes define the narrative, hierarchy and conversion logic before high-fidelity creative direction or development. They deliberately use simplified visual treatment so the strategic structure can be judged independently of styling.

The current website is not the design brief

The existing site is used only to identify migration, SEO and evidence issues. It does not govern the future position, offer architecture, navigation, messaging or visual direction.

What this document proposes

- A buyer-led site organised by situation and level of support, not a flat catalogue of modalities.
- Immediate and equal visibility for one-off sessions and broader ongoing support.
- A premium product architecture: one useful moment, recurring rhythm, connected program and organised year.
- A single public Wellbeing Studio sales page within the CYA site, with Moodle retained for members.
- Evidence-led proof placed where buyer doubt arises, rather than trust strips and unexplained logo walls.
- One governed HubSpot consultation journey with contextual entry points.

What is intentionally not final

Visual art direction, photography selection, production typography, final programme inclusions, verified proof, legal wording, live Studio schedules and detailed integrations remain controlled dependencies.

Critical review of the supplied wireframe pack

The additional document contains sound low-fidelity discipline, but several recommendations are tied to a superseded developer brief and would weaken the approved Stage 2 strategy.

Decision	Stage 2 treatment
Retain	Content-led wireframes before visual design; a linear Studio sales narrative; a lightweight Moodle member dashboard; structured CMS content; explicit states.
Rework	Trust-first homepage sequencing; service-card routing; proof treatment; member navigation; About content.
Retire	Separate WS public marketing site; public pricing comparison page; logo-strip-led credibility; modality-first service architecture.

Primary correction

The service list is a capability inventory, not the premium product. The future site must demonstrate CYA's judgement in selecting, adapting and connecting those capabilities for a real workplace.

Proposed release-one site architecture

The public website carries corporate acquisition and qualification. Wellbeing Studio is a product within that system, while Moodle remains the authenticated member environment.

ONE-OFF SESSIONS AND ONGOING WORKPLACE WELLBEING PROGRAMS

Start with one useful moment—or build a connected year.

Book a one-off movement, mindfulness, workshop or conference session. When you are ready to create greater continuity, CYA can bring those moments together through recurring programs and Wellbeing Studio.

CHOOSE HOW TO BEGIN

Support that fits what your organisation needs now

One useful moment

A focused session, workshop, awareness-day activation or team event.

Conferences and events

Agenda-integrated movement, mindfulness and practical learning.

A recurring rhythm

A short series or regular cadence that builds familiarity.

A connected program

Several wellbeing elements coordinated across a defined period.

Wellbeing Studio

Live and on-demand digital continuity for organisations.

ONE-OFF IS A COMPLETE OFFER

Begin with what is useful now

Book a single experience

- Movement, mindfulness, workshop or conference formats
- Designed for the audience, setting and available time
- No annual commitment required

Build continuity when useful

- Add a short series or recurring rhythm
- Connect live delivery with digital support
- Plan a broader year around your priorities

PROOF IN CONTEXT

Proof should appear beside the promise it supports

Use an approved client story showing the workplace context, the delivery decision, what CYA coordinated and the evidence available.

Why this sequence

It leads with the proposition and buyer choice, not a defensive trust strip. Proof appears when the user needs reassurance and one-off sessions remain visible before the Year View.

Primary risk controlled

The annual framework cannot read as a minimum commitment or diminish conferences, events and single-session demand.

WORKPLACE WELLBEING

Practical wellbeing designed for real workplaces.

Choose a focused experience or combine movement, mindfulness and learning around your people, locations and priorities.

Discuss a session

Explore formats

workplace image

START WITH THE NEED

What would be useful for your people?

Create energy

Movement and activation for teams, meetings and events.

Reduce stiffness

Desk movement, mobility and accessible workplace sessions.

Build calm and focus

Mindfulness, meditation and breathwork for busy workdays.

Strengthen connection

Shared team experiences that feel inclusive and human.

Share practical skills

Workshops and Lunch & Learns with useful takeaways.

Support distributed teams

Live and on-demand access through Wellbeing Studio.

EXPLORE BY FORMAT OR MODALITY

Several routes to the right experience

Engagement format

- One-off session or awareness day
- Short series or recurring activity
- Conference, event or team day
- Multi-location or digital delivery

Modality

- Yoga, Pilates, mobility and desk movement
- Mindfulness, meditation and breathwork
- Workshops, Lunch & Learns and sound experiences
- CYA recommends the mix, rather than selling a menu

THE CYA DELIVERY MODEL

From brief to useful workplace experience

1 Understand the context

2 Shape the experience

3 Coordinate delivery

4 Review and extend

Capture appropriate feedback and identify whether continuity would add value.

Start with one session or explore something broader

The next step is proportionate to the work you need, not a commitment to a fixed package.

Discuss your needs

Why this sequence

A time-poor buyer can begin with the workplace situation, the engagement format or a familiar modality. CYA's recommendation process then becomes part of the value.

Primary risk controlled

The website does not reduce the business to yoga, Pilates and mindfulness cards.

Representative service page: Movement

A service page shows how CYA adapts a modality to workplace context instead of presenting a generic class description.

WHERE IT FITS

Designed around the moment

A quick reset

Short desk-based movement between meetings or within an event.

A team session

Yoga, Pilates or mobility for a wellbeing day or shared experience.

A recurring rhythm

Weekly, fortnightly or short-series activity for greater continuity.

WHAT CYA ADAPTS

The format follows the workplace

Experience design

- Standing, seated or mat-based options
- Duration from a brief activation to a full session
- Language and pacing suited to confidence levels
- Online, onsite or multi-location delivery where verified

What participants need

- Clear guidance before the session
- Choice to modify or pause
- Appropriate space and equipment information
- No expectation of flexibility, fitness or prior experience

PROOF IN CONTEXT

Evidence should show participation and delivery quality

Use an approved example that demonstrates accessibility, attendance, repeat booking or qualitative feedback without making unsupported health claims.

Required evidence

Client permission • context • attendance/feedback • limitations

Plan a one-off session or a recurring movement rhythm

CYA will recommend a format based on your people, location, timing and purpose.

Discuss a movement session

Why this sequence

The page answers suitability, format, adaptation, participation expectations and proof before asking for an enquiry.

Primary risk controlled

Avoids athletic, studio-led or flexibility-based assumptions and unsupported health outcomes.

Programs

The program page owns continuity and the Year View, preventing the annual framework from overwhelming one-off demand elsewhere.

THREE LEVELS OF CONTINUITY

Choose the level of support that fits

A recurring rhythm

A short series or regular cadence that becomes familiar and easy to join.

A connected program

Movement, mindfulness, learning, communications and digital support working together.

An organised year

Planning, multi-location coordination, Wellbeing Studio and review across the year.

HOW A PROGRAM COMES TOGETHER

A coordinated service, not a fixed package

1 Plan around the organisation

Clarify goals, location, activities, timing, stakeholders and constraints.

2 Select the right mix

Choose live, digital and learning elements for the intended audience.

3 Support participation

Coordinate communications, scheduling and practical onboarding.

4 Review responsibly

Use aggregate participation, feedback and delivery learning without overstating outcomes.

THE WELLBEING YEAR

An example planning instrument, not a contract

What it can show

- Seasonal themes and key workplace moments
- Live sessions, campaigns and digital continuity
- Different levels of activity across the year

What it must not imply

- A minimum commitment or fixed package
- Guaranteed availability, price or outcomes
- That every client must begin with an annual program

Plan a short series, connected program or broader year

The consultation defines the useful scope before any proposal is prepared.

Plan your program

Why this sequence

The page explains increasing continuity without publishing unapproved packages or pricing tiers.

Primary risk controlled

The Year View remains optional, illustrative and non-contractual.

AGENDA-INTEGRATED FORMATS

Support the moment the program needs

Quick-start activations

Brief movement or desk stretch to reset energy and attention.

Morning movement

Yoga, Pilates or mobility before the formal agenda begins.

Mindfulness and breathwork

Create calm, focus or a purposeful transition.

Practical learning

Short wellbeing sessions with useful take-home techniques.

Pre and post-event Studio

Extend the experience with tailored digital access where approved.

Multi-day support

Coordinate several moments across a conference or event program.

DESIGNED WITH THE AGENDA

CYA works with the event, not around it

What we plan

- Audience and conference tone
- Timing, room layout and technical requirements
- Facilitator briefing and run sheet integration
- Accessible options and participation cues

What the organiser receives

- A clear recommended format and scope
- Practical logistics and communication guidance
- One accountable CYA contact
- Relevant follow-up options without a forced upsell

PROOF IN CONTEXT

Show an event story, not a generic testimonial

The strongest proof explains the agenda challenge, intervention, duration, participant response and organiser feedback.

Event proof

Why this sequence

The organiser sees agenda use cases, implementation detail and event-specific proof before the consultation.

Primary risk controlled

Conference work is not buried beneath annual programmes or treated as a lead-generation device.

ONE PRODUCT, TWO PERSPECTIVES

Useful for employees. Manageable for organisations.

For employees

- Short live sessions and practical on-demand content
- Movement, Pilates, yoga, mindfulness and audio practices
- Access when a useful moment arises, not only during office hours
- Clear routes by need, time available and context

For employers

- Organisation access following an agreement with CYA
- Onboarding and communication support where confirmed
- Privacy-safe aggregate usage reporting where available
- A digital layer that can stand alone or extend live delivery

Two, five, ten or twenty-minute practices.

PROOF IN CONTEXT

Pilot evidence must define the public promise

Only confirmed schedules, content cadence, support and reporting should appear. Prototype modules remain clearly labelled until approved.

Privacy boundary

Aggregate employer reporting only • no individual activity or inferred wellbeing status

ABOUT CORPORATE YOGA AUSTRALIA

Workplace wellbeing shaped by lived experience and practical delivery.

CYA was founded in 2014, building on Debby Lewis's earlier experience bringing yoga and meditation into a high-pressure workplace.

workplace image

THE FOUNDING VIEW

Wellbeing should work for people who may never enter a studio

The worldview

- Practical rather than performative
- Inclusive rather than athletic or prescriptive
- Human even when systems and automation support delivery
- Useful in sectors and roles not always served by workplace wellbeing

The business today

- One-off sessions, conferences and recurring activity
- Connected workplace programs and multi-location support
- Wellbeing Studio as the continuous digital layer
- A facilitator network published only when verification is complete

HOW CYA WORKS

Judgement before activity selection

1 Listen to the organisation

Understand the people, workplace, purpose and operational reality.

2 Design the right experience

Choose and adapt formats instead of selling a standard menu.

3 Deliver with care

Coordinate facilitators, logistics, communications and participation guidance.

4 Learn and improve

Use responsible evidence and client feedback to strengthen future delivery.

PROOF IN CONTEXT

Credentials and recognition must be verified before public

Founder biography, awards, facilitator qualifications, insurance and national delivery claims remain governed evidence, not decorative trust content.

Required records

Approved bio • credentials • permissions • insurance • award evidence

EDITORIAL GOVERNANCE

Publish less, maintain it better

Every resource has

- A defined audience and practical purpose
- An owner, approval status and review date
- Relevant claims and evidence controls
- A clear next action

Avoid

- Generic wellness content produced for volume
- Duplicated Studio member content
- Outdated awareness-day pages left indexed

PROOF IN CONTEXT

Public sales forms must not collect health information

Do not ask for employee wellbeing status, medical conditions or individual activity information. Keep the form focused on organisational requirements.

Required states

Success • validation error • submission failure • duplicate enquiry • alternate contact

A useful conversation, not an opaque sales gate

Set expectations before the form and provide an accessible alternative contact route.

Stage 2 working document • 31 July 2026

Why this sequence

The buyer understands the purpose and expected next step before supplying information. Progressive disclosure improves qualification without creating a long first form.

Primary risk controlled

No employee health data or inferred wellbeing status enters the public sales workflow.

Mobile and responsive behaviour

The experience is defined for mobile, keyboard, zoom, reduced motion and slow networks before Stage 3 styling.

MOBILE-FIRST PRIORITIES

The narrative must survive reordering

Hero actions remain visible

Primary consultation action and one-off session path stay within the opening view.

Proof follows the claim

Place the relevant evidence directly after the promise it supports.

Forms use clear steps

Visible labels, appropriate input types, error summary and preserved values.

Cards become a sequence

Do not compress pathway cards into unreadable horizontal rows.

Year View has a static fallback

The experience remains useful without drag, hover or animation.

Member hand-off is explicit

Opening Moodle is a deliberate task, not a surprising domain change.

INTERACTION AND ACCESSIBILITY

Premium means resilient

Required behaviour

- Keyboard-operable navigation and controls
- Visible focus and 44 × 44 px minimum targets
- Reduced-motion alternative
- Loading, empty, error and success states

Content requirements

- One H1 and ordered headings
- Alt text based on image purpose
- Captions and transcripts for media
- Readable reflow at 400% zoom

PROOF IN CONTEXT

Performance is part of the experience definition

Use responsive images, stable dimensions, efficient font delivery and minimal client-side JavaScript. Validate Core Web Vitals on representative mobile devices.

Acceptance target

WCAG 2.2 AA • Core Web Vitals
"Good" at the 75th percentile

Stage 3 designs every component in context

High-fidelity work begins only after content hierarchy, proof and interaction states are approved.

Approve Stage 2 direction

Why this sequence

Responsive behaviour is treated as part of the narrative and component definition, not a late-stage compression exercise.

Primary risk controlled

No essential meaning relies on hover, animation, desktop width or high-powered devices.

Shared page and component rules

These rules govern every Stage 3 page and prevent isolated screen design from weakening the overall experience.

One page, one job

Each page has a defined priority audience, question, narrative and primary action.

Proof where doubt arises

Evidence sits beside the claim it supports. Procurement evidence is accessible without dominating the first impression.

One-off before or alongside the Year View

A buyer never has to move through the annual framework to locate a single session or conference offer.

Contextual calls to action

Use Book a wellbeing consultation as the governing action, with variants such as Discuss your conference and Book a Studio walkthrough.

Static before enhanced

Core content and the Year View remain complete without JavaScript. Motion clarifies relationships but never gates access.

Governed content states

Draft, evidence required, approved, scheduled, archived and review-due states should exist in the CMS model.

Responsible analytics

Track events only where they answer a decision question: pathway selection, proof use, form completion, source and qualified conversion.

Stage 2 decisions and controlled dependencies

The structural direction can be approved while evidence and operational records continue as controlled pre-launch dependencies.

Decision or dependency	Current treatment	Effect if unresolved
Public site structure	Recommended for Stage 2 approval	Stage 3 cannot begin coherently without it.
One-off and ongoing proposition	Locked governing principle	Must remain visible in hero, navigation and page sequencing.
Final platform	Open technical decision	Content model remains platform-neutral until selected.
Offer matrix and programme inclusions	Controlled dependency	Withhold detailed package comparison and pricing.
Client proof and permissions	Controlled dependency	Use non-publishable placeholders in prototypes.
Studio schedule, support and reporting	Controlled dependency	Publish only confirmed current capability.
Legal, insurance and safety records	Pre-launch dependency	Reserve trust and procurement modules until approved.
Brand production assets	Stage 3 dependency	Current tokens guide the wireframes; final lock-off governs UI.

Recommended approval

Approve the site architecture, page jobs, narrative sequences and conversion model as the basis for the full Experience and Content Definition package. Continue evidence collection in parallel without allowing missing proof to reopen the strategic structure.

NEXT ACTION

Stage 3 handover requirements

High-fidelity creative direction should begin only when this structural package is approved.

- Translate the approved positioning into a distinctive visual concept and art direction.
- Lock production typography, colour tokens, imagery rules, logo hierarchy and motion principles.
- Create content-complete high-fidelity prototypes for Home, Workplace Wellbeing, Programs, Conferences, Wellbeing Studio and Consultation.
- Define the reusable component and CMS model from the approved page patterns.
- Validate the prototype with representative buyer tasks, keyboard use, zoom/reflow and mobile performance.
- Preserve all evidence-required content as visibly controlled placeholders until approved.

Stage 2 quality gate

One-off sessions are immediately visible. The Year View is optional. Every page has one job. Proof appears where doubt arises. Wellbeing Studio reflects current product reality. Buyer, gatekeeper, administrator and member journeys are not conflated. Stage 3 can proceed without strategic guesswork.
